Market position

Novaland Group maintains its position as one of the leading and most prominent real estate developers in Vietnam, particularly dominating the southern market. The company possesses a massive land bank of over 2,400 hectares across prime locations, encompassing high-end residential complexes in Ho Chi Minh City and flagship hospitality mega-projects in satellite provinces. Landmark developments such as Aqua City (Dong Nai), NovaWorld Phan Thiet (Binh Thuan), and NovaWorld Ho Tram (Ba Ria-Vung Tau) define its footprint. Despite recent market fluctuations, Novaland's strong brand equity and its proven capacity to deliver large-scale urban areas allow it to remain a key trendsetter in Vietnam's luxury and wellness real estate segments.

Financial performance

During the 2020–2025 period, the company’s business performance experienced significant fluctuations and lacked stability due to the impact of the economic environment and market conditions. Revenue growth was highly volatile, surging by 196.49% in 2021 before declining continuously over the next two years, then recovering by 90.74% in 2024 and decreasing again by 23.23% in 2025. At the same time, net profit after tax decreased considerably and recorded a loss of more than 4.39 million VND in 2024, before recovering to over 1.86 million VND in 2025. ROEA and ROAA also declined sharply and fell into negative territory in 2024, reflecting weakened efficiency in the use of equity and assets, although both indicators showed slight improvement in the final year. In addition, EPS continuously declined and dropped to negative 3,310 VND in 2024 before recovering to 945 VND in 2025, indicating that the company is gradually improving its profitability and operational efficiency after a difficult period.

SHORT TO MEDIUM-TERM INVESTMENT HORIZON

The reason is that port and logistics infrastructure requires time to expand capacity, attract long-term shipping contracts, and fully benefit from Vietnam’s trade growth cycle.

1 TO 3 YEARS

If the real estate market recovers and projects restart successfully, NVL may see strong price recovery in the short to medium term, although volatility remains high.

SUITABLE FOR INVESTORS WITH A HIGH RISK TOLERANCE
