Market position

OIL holds a strong position in Vietnam’s petroleum distribution industry as one of the country’s largest fuel wholesalers and retailers. Backed by its extensive nationwide distribution network, strategic storage facilities, and strong relationship with the oil and gas sector, the company maintains a significant market presence. While it faces intense competition from major industry players such as Petrolimex, OIL benefits from its established brand, broad customer base, and crucial role in ensuring fuel supply across Vietnam.

Financial performance

The company experienced volatile revenue growth during 2020–2025, with strong expansion in 2020 and 2022, a slight decline in 2023, and a recovery above 20% growth in 2024–2025. Although Earnings After Tax turned positive after 2020 and remained stable, profitability growth has slowed in recent years. ROEA, ROAA, and EPS all peaked in 2022 before gradually declining, indicating pressure on operational efficiency and returns. Overall, the company maintains strong revenue growth potential but faces challenges in translating sales growth into higher profitability and shareholder returns.

TIME HORIZON

SUITABLE FOR MEDIUM TO -TERM INVESTMENT

The company's performance is closely linked to the cyclical nature of the oil and gas industry, where earnings are influenced by fluctuations in global oil prices and domestic fuel demand. A longer investment horizon allows investors to benefit from industry recovery cycles, stable fuel consumption growth, and OIL’s strong position in Vietnam’s petroleum distribution market. 2 to 5 years

RISK TOLERANCE

MEDIUM RISK TOLERANCE

The company operates in the petroleum industry, where performance is influenced by fluctuations in global oil prices, government regulations, and macroeconomic conditions. However, its strong market position, extensive distribution network, and essential role in Vietnam’s energy supply provide a degree of stability. Investors seeking steady growth and exposure to the energy sector may find OIL an attractive medium-risk investment.

Medium and long-term prospectus POSITIVE OUTLOOK FOR MEDIUM TO LONG-TERM

Expansion of petroleum distribution network and infrastructure

OIL continues to invest in and optimize its nationwide petroleum distribution system, including retail stations, storage facilities, and logistics infrastructure. These investments strengthen operational efficiency and support sustainable long-term growth.

Growing fuel demand in Vietnam

Vietnam’s ongoing economic growth, industrialization, and increasing transportation demand are expected to drive higher fuel consumption. This creates favorable conditions for OIL to maintain stable sales volumes and revenue growth over the medium and long term.

Strong market position and strategic role

As one of Vietnam’s largest petroleum distributors, OIL benefits from its extensive distribution network and its strategic role within the national energy supply chain. The company’s focus on improving operational efficiency, expanding retail channels, and adapting to evolving energy trends supports its long-term competitiveness and growth prospects.
